BOWLER PARTY
To Meet in Bethel on Aug. 11.

In 1895 Mr. E. C. Bowler of Bethel took two parties to the Pacific coast, taking each of them a delightful tour. On these two tours new friendships were made and it has been a desire of the people for some time to hold a reunion at some convenient point. This was held at the Parker House in Boston last winter and another will be held on Mr. Bowler's lawn in Bethel on Wednesday, Aug. 14. The party will arrive on the morning train from Portland, hold a picnic dinner on the lawn, spend an hour in talking over and in a game, reading and enjoying the pleasures of the 1905 tour, and then if time allows, before the departure of the afternoon train it is hoped to give them a short automobile ride.

The people who will meet at this reunion are among the best of New England blood and are such people as Bethel may well be proud to have in our midst.

These people have never seemed to speak in limited terms of some great era, the era of which they were a part and gave them a loyal welcome and entertainment. They got an impression of those times which will stay with them and it is Mr. Bowler's desire to give them the same impression of Bethel. He is not, however, asking the people to turn out and

WHAT CHARLES DICKENS SAID.

Great Writer's Remark is Small Boy Lingered Long in Memory.

Mr. Henry C. Robinson, a witty lawyer who used to live in Hartford, Conn., once told the following anecdote of an English author to a Hartford audience. "The first famous Englishman whom I ever saw was Charles Dickens, who lectured here in Hartford when I was a young boy. I had read some of the stories of this great writer, and I was most anxious to catch a glimpse of the man himself. So on the afternoon when he was expected to arrive I walked up and down the street in front of the hotel where I knew he was to stay. The hotel was built close to the sidewalk, and the long windows of the hotel were so low that the passerby could easily see into the room. I soon realized that a gentleman was sitting within, reading a paper. I stepped close up under the window and pressed my face against the glass, eager to get a good look at the stranger. Yes, it was he! It really was! I had seen his picture often, and couldn't be mistaken. I stared and stared, anxious to impress every feature upon my memory. After a few moments he turned and saw me there, the little eager Yankee boy, gazing up at his face; and then the famous man, laying aside his paper, actually spoke, so that I really heard the voice of the great Charles Dickens himself, and he was really talking to me!" Here Mr. Robinson paused impressively, and some one on the platform inquired, "What did he say, Mr. Robinson?" "He said," replied Mr. Robinson, in subdued tones, "Go away, little boy! go away!"

PAPA'S IDEA OF ECONOMY.

All Right When It Only Affects Pleasures of Others.

Not long ago we heard a man's little daughter say to him: "Papa, can't I have a nickel to buy some gum?" He was a good, kind man, and he didn't refuse her request. He pulled her on the back and said, "Remember, your old dad can't afford such things. It takes all our money to buy bread and meat and keep you and mamma in shoes." She looked disappointed and walked away. Presently he started home. He felt as if a hot iron would help his appetite and put him in a more cheerful frame of mind in which to greet his family, as he walked in and put his hand upon the forehead. "What you have, boy?" he asked. "Some of them took 'em straight; some took it diluted with water. Nobody condescended to take beer. Our friend phoned down a dollar. When the bartender rang up the register it showed 44 cents—Lamar Democrat."

Hayden's Grave.

The city council of Vienna has made formal arrangements for the removal of the bones of Joseph Hayden to Vienna, where the city fathers say, "A fitting resting place will be provided by the city." This will be near the graves of Beethoven and Schubert. Hayden was 77 years old when he died in Vienna in 1895. He was buried in a little cemetery near the Hundsturm line, and at the head of the grave was placed a small stone, at the expense of his pupil, Augustus Knight of Westphalen. The stone bore only the name "Hayden" and the inscription, "Now comes Hayden's turn." Now comes Hayden's turn to be removed to Westphalen, where Hayden had been music director from 1796 to 1838, and there an elaborate monument with ample inscription was erected.

Hard Water.

A farm woman in Pennsylvania once said: "I never hear anyone say 'The old-fashioned bucket' without a shudder." For 15 years she had done the cooking and washing for a family of six with no other water article than what she had hauled out of a well every 10 feet deep by means of a bucket. Bucket in water were almost out of the question, and even in the summer they were regarded as an occasion of more than ordinary indignation, for which preparations had to be made hours ahead of the great event. A cubic foot of water weighs 7.48 pounds, and in all these years the number of times the woman had lifted and made people shudder by "hauled" and "hauling" buckets was a good deal like getting "roped" to a man about to be hanged—Palm Springs.

Man's Wife Shows Age.

"You can tell a man's age by his head," said one of the girls. "They get baldy and wrinkled and terrible. They get old never than his face." "You can tell it most of all," I think, said the woman. "For his wife. I know a man who has been one of the brightest and most of his mind, who is still the best company I know, but the other day when I saw him come toward me at his home along the bay, I made no attempt and he saw the hair, and said way to which he walked."

Youngest Member of the Club.

The youngest member of the club was the last member, who had come here to live with the club. Just before the club started he headed a team to New York, saying: "You will find that a capital look to find on your journey." After the team had started the young member said: "You will find that a capital look to find on your journey." After the team had started the young member said: "You will find that a capital look to find on your journey."

UTILIZING THE BONES.

Surprising That This Valuable Food Material is Allowed to Waste.

It is a surprise to me that the bones produced on the farm and coming from the table of the farmer are not more generally utilized in the feeding of poultry, says a writer in Farmers' Review. I bought a good bone cutter several years ago and found that it worked to perfection. I had heard about it being hard work to cut or grind bones, but I think that must be the case only with the old machines that are now out of date. Ways have been found of making the work easy, the newer machines being so adjusted that the power required is comparatively small.

I found that I had at hand a big supply of all kinds of bones. From the butcher shop I got fresh bones with the meat hanging to them. When the bones were around they presented an appearance of being largely ground meat. The fowl ate them with avidity and they certainly had a stimulating effect.

I was able to utilize all the bones that came from our own dining table, and that was a large amount. These bones had always been thrown away before that. The bones contain not only lime, but they also contain some phosphorus and some nitrogen. They are a good food for fowl, whose glands are made for the utilizing of such materials.

Of course the droppings of the hens so fed are richer than are the droppings of hens that have no ground bone. The difference is largely in the amount of phosphorus. I wonder that more farmers do not have machines for preparing bones for fowl.

VENTILATION FOR HIVE.

The Advantage of More Than One Entrance to Hives.

Dr. Miller says, in referring to the advantage of having more than one entrance to a hive during the height of the honey-dew: "You can not make me believe it is not easier for the bees to have one hole for the air to go out and another for it to come in than to make the air go both ways in the same hole." This is something for the practical beekeeper of today to think over very carefully, says Oleanizing in Bee Culture. Too much ventilation sometimes certainly is bad, but is there not somewhere a golden mean by which we can relieve the bees of a great load of work? Or, to put it another way, is it necessary to keep a large frame of workers at home idle during the heat of the day if we can by some mechanical means reduce the temperature of the hive, allowing this force to go to the field? This question will hinge somewhat on whether comb or extracted honey is produced.

TO TELL AGE OF EGG.

Fresh Egg Will Sink When Placed in a Glass of Water.

A fresh egg will sink when placed in water and rest on its side; if three weeks old it will incline slightly with the small end down. If three months old it will stand on the small end, and if older it will float with the large end up and water mark on side, according to age.

PIGMENTED ROCKS.

There are now three kinds of Plymouth Rocks—the Barred Plymouth Rocks, White Plymouth Rocks and Red Plymouth Rocks. The two latter are now striped that have been recently produced. The most popular is still the Barred Plymouth Rocks, which has been used by the farmers since the first appearance of the breed. The Barred Plymouth Rock has failed to hold its own against all new substitutions that may appear. In fact, it would be hard to find why the White and Red Rocks are superior to the others. It is possible that their color attracts more.

Looking After Straying Hens.

If the old hen can have a little pen outside the nest, where she can get off, stretch, and drink when she desires, it will not be necessary to chase her on the nest and the labor of setting her off to eat at certain intervals will be avoided. Consequently, however, a hen will not leave the nest when called to which collection feed against taking off and all of that kind must be attended to regularly.

Which Line to Breed Hens.

With hens breeding the young, the power should be in the nest that it is in the nest when the hen is present. Any hen when the hen is present should be in the nest when the hen is present. Any hen when the hen is present should be in the nest when the hen is present.

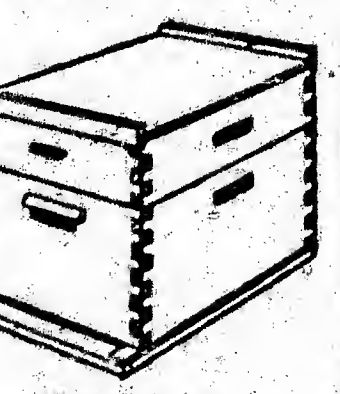

POULTRY AND BEES.

BEST KIND OF HIVE.

Do Not Use the Box Hive Because It Is Hard to Get At.

Box hives, says Farm and Home, are not advised. Even though you now think you will never open a hive, you may change your mind, and then it will be better to have had movable-frame hives from the start. Your bees may fall into the hands of someone who will get prefer the movable frames. A colony in a box hive may be queenless; you are helpless; the colony is doomed. With movable frames you can easily determine the condition of the colony and supply a queen, if lacking.

There is no longer any patent on the movable frame and good work may be done with any one of the different forms. The idea that if you adopt a certain make of hive you will get an extra amount of honey is all fool-dream. Hives don't gather and store honey; bees do that. One of the simplest as well as one of the best is the dovetailed hive, so called because its corners are locked together for greater strength. It is the most popular among men who produce honey by the ton, as well as among amateurs who keep one or two colonies for the pleasure of it. Each comb is in a wooden frame, and one or all the combs can be lifted out of the hive and returned at will, and this feature of all movable-frame hives. The frame used in the dovetailed hive is called the Langstroth frame and is 17 1/2 inches long and 9 1/2 inches deep, outside measure.

CHICKEN CHATTER.

Influence of Bad Eggs.

When a bad egg is placed among good ones it doesn't take it long to spoil them.

The sex of a hen may be distinguished by the voice. The female has a loud, coarse voice, while that of the male is low and nasally.

If a hen is in a nest and a cock is in the yard, the hen will be in a nest and a cock will be in the yard. The hen will be in a nest and a cock will be in the yard.

Another reason why the larger hen is better for the average farmer is that hens are not so much given to swarming where they are in large flocks. However, swarming may be now to have your colonies warm so as to increase the number of colonies, you may rest assured that the time will come when you will be still more anxious that your bees should swarm. Every swarm loses issues worth just so much calling down of the honey crop for the current year.

DRIVING INTO NETS.

In the old days every southern gentleman had his net for quail. The drive was an event in the society. Our youth of today may never enjoy such sport. In the proper season the neighbors were invited. All came on horseback, for while quail will rise from the approach of a dog or man, they will run along the ground ahead of a gentle horse. Much skill was required to drive a quail into the net. As many as 20 horses would form a semicircle and slowly, patiently, silently make the round, all driving toward the common center, yet from one general direction only, and that always against the wind. The net had been set in the wind. An impatient man on a fractious horse might destroy the sport of half a day by driving the quail into the net.

BASE-BRAWLED NURSERY RHYMES.

(By a famous lady.)

Jack and Jill
Went up the hill
The lass went for to see
The boy went for to see
Because the pair
Lacked the admission fee.

Humpty-sitt, baby,
On the tree-top.
When the wind blows the apple will rock.
When the wind blows the apple will rock.
The apple will fall.
And then the lady will know better
Than to climb up there to watch
A game of baseball.

Little Bo-Peep
Has lost her sheep,
And I know where she's hid them
Under the old tree stump.
Up on the hill-top,
With a lot of "woolies" behind them.

The Kitchen Floor

is the hardest floor in the house to keep in good condition. But put on a coat of

A Help to Health

W. Ripley, Me., Sept. 26, 1906.
I have used the true L. F. Atwood's Bitters in my family for over thirty years, and think it far superior to any other medicine of the kind we ever used.
Sincerely yours,
Mrs. H. C. Nane.

Every household should keep the true L. F. Atwood's Bitters on hand. Their stimulating and cleansing action on stomach, liver, bowels and blood aids these organs to proceed with normal regularity and maintain the perfect health of the body. For old and young the "L. F. Atwood's Bitters" are a reliable remedy. 35c. at druggists.

THE HOME CIRCLE.

Pleasant Evening Reveries—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Mothers.

"Mid life's commotions—dismal fears—
Mid cares and woes and floods of tears,
How sweetly breaks upon the ear
Some word of comfort or of cheer;
Yet of our friends there is not another
Who speaks as gently as our mother."

"Here disappointments crowd each day,
Our brightest hopes soon fade away,
And friends long trusted off deceive;
We scarcely know whom to believe,
Yet, though we fear to trust each other,
We're not afraid to trust our mother."

"Yet here where there's so much deceit,
Some friends we have we love to meet;
There's love we know that will endure,
Not cold, selfish, but all pure;
Not though beloved by sister, brother,
There's none that love us like our mother."

"Among the names to mortals given,
There's none like mother, home and heaven;
For home's no home without her care;
And heaven, we know she will be there;
Then let us while we love each other,
Remember and be kind to mother."

Make Home Happy.

We often read how the wife is to make home the brightest spot on earth. She is always to wear a cheerful countenance, as well as the cleanest of dresses and collars; to have her hair arranged, and over to meet her other half at the door with a kiss. The house must be always smiling in its orderly way; children dirty, happy no exception to the general rule.

Now the great wonder is, how the husband nothing to do in this matter, of making home happy? To be sure he may do a great deal towards making a home. He may build the house and furnish it to princely style. He may furnish an abundance of food for the table—buy any amount of one thing for the family need. Yet he is vain and early as a snapping turtle, or casual, or careless in his habits, or unacquainted with his wife and little ones. All that the wife can do will not make the home an agreeable one. Neither can a wife be happy with a husband who is addicted to making fault with his household habits. She may try ever so hard to please him, yet when he sits down to meals, she lives in constant fear that some portion of the food will not suit his fastidious taste.

A Chat With Our Young Men.

Now, let us be men. Let us be honest, earnest, young men and we shall then be noble men. Nobleness and gentleness are not one and the same. We may never be what the world calls great, but we can all be noble men, and our nobleness can commence this very hour and last where we are. A young man's first and truest act of nobility is to love, honor and protect his parents. When he becomes too proud to be good, he becomes a staff to a tottering, helpless father, or to stand by the bedside of a mother who is waiting a moment's aid of the nurse to catch one more gasp through the fading shadow of the past, of her little boy that in manhood, he is surely fast going down the entrance of manhood.

When we launch our ships on the morning waves of the great sea of life, let us guide them by the light of love, with the helm of the gentle words of our mother. Not until we have left home and are wandering in the various straits of a strange land, unaided, unadvised, lonely and weary, will we know of a truth what a mother is. Then we feel that she is good and we bless her. Never can we repay our mother's kindness. Her withered form and her silvering hair shall be defended till that day cometh when he shall make up his jawless and then, we weep, Heaven will know no kinder, no brighter, no purer angel than she. When the ever shining stars shall wane in the fading of our vision, and the misty world will grow still in our sleep of death, will we forget her; not till then.

A Hint to Housewives.

Isn't it strange that some men, who will be kind and obliging to their neighbors, gentlemen and polite in other ladies, will be so rude and cold at home, and perfect bores in their wives' creation, complaint, and

"GET THE FIRST $1,000."

Ancient Axiom That Has Set Many Men to Saving.

"Get the first $1,000. After that money-making is easy." This is the old-time sage advice of the hard-headed, self-made man. That axiom has set many men to saving. They fix upon that sum as the glittering, far-off herald of a fortune something to be made. To a man on a small salary—a salary, say, out of which something can be saved weekly without too much deprivation—the advice is good. There is something in it that acts as a stimulus to economy. And who will deny that economy is a good thing or that any truth that lights the way to it should not be known?

Many men, therefore, have been buoyed up in their economies by the belief that the first $1,000 is the hardest to get, and that afterward the rest would be easy and the good things of the world that follow a bounteous supply of money would be within easy reach, says a writer in the Denver Republican. It is a pity that the man who invented that saying could not not have told us with equal advantage how to turn the $1,000 over and make two of it. It takes a long time to make a wage-earner see that "money works." His idea of making money is to work for it himself. It never occurs to him that money works much easier than he can and without any of the hardships he himself experiences—that is to say, until he has got the first $1,000. That usually means a young man feels like a financier, and he talks wisely of investments.

STYLES OF 4,000 YEARS AGO.

Tend to Prove There is Nothing New Under the Sun.

For women archeology assumes a deeply interesting phase in the question which has been raised by Signor Mosso as to styles in dress as they existed 4,000 years ago. Signor Mosso, the eminent authority on ancient Egypt, the Roman Forum, and early Crete, has concentrated his great experience and knowledge on elucidating this bygone of science from his Cretan studies. The general result has been to confirm the old dictum that there is nothing new under the sun. Even the "latest fashions" are antiquated. Signor Mosso finds that 4,000 years ago the ladies of primeval Mycenae wore hats pretty much as they are seen in the showrooms of Paris to-day. They knew what corset trimming was, had tarts before the Scotch, underdressed the mystic of corsets lacing in front, short wide sleeves, metal belts, and a style of dress which an imitative nineteenth century, that considered itself original, dubbed "Empire." Their principal colors in robes were orange, yellow, blue and purple, which rather upsets the claim of the Phoenicians to have "discovered" purple.

Properties of Gold.

Pure gold is unaffected by the atmosphere either at ordinary temperatures or when the metal is heated. It is also proof against the action of common acids when used singly. Moreover, says the Jeweler's Circular Weekly, it contains its properties more or less upon copper and silver when these metals are alloyed with it. Thus, for example, 12 karat gold will withstand the action of nitric acid and the atmosphere at ordinary temperatures, but once the copper will be oxidized during annealing. Nine parts of gold may be alloyed with ten parts of platinum in an ordinary crucible and fire, but such an alloy will not be uniform; a large proportion of platinum will free itself from the rest on solidifying and a homogeneous alloy of the two metals cannot be obtained.

Necessary.

"I am afraid you are becoming a practical politician," said the sincere friend.

"I am," answered the eminent personage. "A statesman must be a mighty good politician if he wants to stay in public life long enough to put his theories into actual operation."—Washington Star.

PAID MONEY FOR A PEEP.

Children's Alleged Woman-Gold-Holes in Baseball Fence.

Charged with selling permission to outsiders to come into her yard and look through the holes in her fence at the baseball game at Piedmont park without a license, Mrs. M. Hatchett appeared in the police court at Atlanta, Ga., and after a hearing she was allowed her freedom by the Recorder.

Detective Lockhart made the case at the instance of the police officer at the park. It was stated that Mrs. Hatchett charged five cents a head to look through the cracks and holes in her fence, which is part of the fence enclosing the baseball ground, and see the games. One little boy was in court as witness, and testified to having paid Mrs. Hatchett's little girl a nickel to see the game, but not being well pleased with the location had his money refunded and left.

Mrs. Hatchett denied that she charged any money for looking through the holes. There was no evidence produced during the trial that Mrs. Hatchett was engaged in such a business, and Judge Broyles dismissed the case on condition that the lady did not accept any pay from those people whom she allowed to go into her yard and see the games.

HOW TO CURE A NOSE BLEED.

Some Suggestions Made to a Sufferer by a Sympathetic Crowd.

A man whose nose was bleeding stood in the alley near the sidewalk south of the Dwight building the other afternoon, his head bowed and the blood dripping rapidly to the ground. A crowd of sympathizers and questioners gathered around him, says the Kansas City Star.

"Say, fellow, if your right nostril is bleeding hold your left hand high in the air for a minute or two," one man suggested. Up went the hand of the sufferer.

"A better way to stop it is to hold a key down your back as far as possible, something like this," another member of the crowd suggested. The man with the bleeding nose fumbled in his pocket for a second and brought forth a key, which he shoved down his back and held it there for a time.

"A better way than that is to stick a roll of paper or something under the upper lip," a third one suggested. The man drew a piece of paper from his pocket and stuck it under the upper lip.

"Say, partner, the trouble is your blood has a tendency to flow upward. Now, if you will stand on your head and allow the blood to flow the other way it will stop that nose bleeding at once."

This was too much for the man with the bleeding nose. Holding a handkerchief to his nose he pushed a way through the crowd and walked rapidly down the street.

"If that man would only lay flat on his back and hold his feet in the air his nose would stop bleeding at once," was a parting suggestion. But the man with the bleeding nose did not hear him.

Accommodational.

"I should think you would have more accommodations in this car for passengers," said the indignant man who had almost sat in the lap of another passenger, as the car made a swing around a curve.

"Why, sir?" replied the conductor, ringing up another fare, "there are three straps not in use!"—Yonkers Statesman.

One was a 12-14 H. P. Tourabout, and the other a 15-Passenger, 20 H. P. Touring Car, both of them ordinary stock cars.

Although the "MAXWELL" was by no means the only car to win this peculiarly exacting test with a perfect score, we want to call your special attention to the fact that this "MAXWELL" Touring Car costing only $1,450.00, and the Tourabout, costing only $825.00, performed every bit as well as the successful cars which cost three and four times as much.

The "MAXWELL" also swept the entire field of light cars at the West Wilkes-Barre and Bridgeport hill climbs.

The "MAXWELL" holds the 3,000-mile non-stop record of the world, won the Denning Trophy in the Golden Tour of 1936, and won endurance contest after contest.

ALANG OF NEW GUINEA.

Grass That Makes Fierce Warfare on All Other Kinds of Vegetation.

Dr. Poch, the Austrian anthropologist, who has spent a long time in New Guinea studying its natives and its geography, tells of a remarkable variety of grass that makes fierce warfare upon other kinds of vegetation so that practically nothing else grows where it gets a foothold.

The thick and tough stalk, but its greatest peculiarity is its roots, which spread out through every particle of earth they reach and give it a matted texture something like felt. There is really no room left for the roots of any other kind of vegetation.

Fields of alang cannot exist in forests because the plant does not thrive in the shade. Neither can any kind of tree make headway in a patch of alang.

The two kinds of vegetation are antagonistic. One will not grow where the other exists. Large patches of alang are found surrounded by timber and remain there like islands, for no trees will grow in them. Between the alang and the forest is a sort of neutral zone, for the shade of the high trees prevents the development of the grass.

The New Guinea natives help to extend the area covered by this grass. Each year they make a new clearing in the forest for their little plantations. As soon as these are abandoned the alang takes firm lodgment there. It has won just so much territory from the forest and it yields to no comers.

WEALTH OF CANADIAN FARMERS.

Are at Present Lending Money to the Manufacturers.

There is no question that the largest percentage of the amount at present on deposit in Canadian banks (some $750,000,000) is controlled by the agricultural community. This vast amount is in addition to the large sums on deposit with trust and loan companies and in farm mortgages, for it is well known that in recent years the aggregate of farm mortgages, in Ontario and Quebec particularly, has been decreased. The farmers to-day as a class are not borrowers, but lenders. This is markedly so in Ontario.

Turning to the other side of the banking returns, it is observed that current loans and discounts, which represent the volume of money employed in the manifold industries of the country, have increased in just about the same ratio as the deposits.

In other words, the manufacturers of the country and those engaged in other lines of activity are borrowing the capital required in their various enterprises from the farmers.

Nature Fails.

You know Haeckel, Ernst Haeckel, the wonderful German scientist of Jena? Well, said a globe trotter, "I have seen that man eat snakes, monkeys, and iguanas."

"It was in Caylon, in a village called Belgams. We were spending the winter there, and we had a fine time, although it was too hot. Haeckel ate his queer food in his daily curries, taking the profoundest scientific interest in them."

"His old cook to-day would give him a curried snake, to-morrow an iguana, the next day a sea spider, the day after a monkey. And Haeckel would laugh, taste the meat curiously, and if it was good, eat it with appetite."

"A strange man, a scientific machine—yet very lovable—if a centipede was sweet and tender, he would as soon eat it as chicken."

Fewer Love Letters Now.

"It's wonderful how few love letters are recalled through the mails these days," remarked a postoffice attaché the other day. "I can remember when scores of swains came in every day to take advantage of the postal provisions for recalling letters after they had been mailed. It is not difficult to notice a great falling off in the proportion of the letters from young men to girls that are recalled. I take it that people are getting more careful about what they say. Then there is another reason—the telephone. Young men do not write love letters so much when they can call their sweethearts on the phone and have a few minutes' chat with them every day or two in a neighboring city. Still, I don't suppose the old-fashioned love letter will ever be entirely supplanted."

Sacred Trees of India.

There are many sacred trees of India which enter largely into the religious life of the Hindus. Chief among these is the samal tree and the trembling poplar. Nearly all the higher hills and rocks in the plains are crowded each by a temple, shrine or sacred tree. The poplar is known as the king of trees. It is the most holy, and the three great spirits of the Hindus dwell therein. The worship of the tree is the worship of the Hindu. Every Indian village has its poplar tree, with a raised platform or altar around it. The devotees remove their shoes before it and make obeisance before proceeding on their way.

Found the Right Principle.

"Much of my success in life," said the millionaire, "was due to the advice of my friends."

"Is it possible?" exclaimed the skeptical person.

"Yes," replied the man of millions. "I always listened to it—but never followed it."

HER GIFTS TO JOHN

OF COURSE HE SHOULD HAVE BEEN PLEASED, BUT—

Possibly Presents of Some Other Kind Would Have Been More Appreciable to That Worldly-Minded Individual.

Of course it would not be so bad if he was one of those nice, ladylike men who can discriminate between handwrought and machine-made lace and can speak feelingly of color harmonies in wall paper, but he is not that kind at all.

He is just one of those bustling, hustling financiers, who is director in half a dozen big corporations and who rushes around on the floor of the chamber of commerce, forcing the market up or down as his interests lie.

He only has one weakness, and that is his wife, who is a small doll of a woman, deeply religious and who loves pretty things.

The other day she went off to Philadelphia to attend a missionary convention, and thence to Atlantic City with a group of delegates. Her return was heralded by express packages and souvenirs galore from the oriental shops of the seaside town, and she was showing her trophies to a friend.

"Didn't you bring John anything?" questioned the friend, knowing that John must have set up a neat check to permit of this expenditure.

"Yes; I brought John several things," replied the wife, "but he doesn't seem very enthusiastic over them."

"For one thing, I brought him a beautiful salad bowl. It is to represent a tomato on a leaf of lettuce. So artistic, the red tomato on the green background."

John shot an agonized glance at the visitor over his newspaper.

"Then I bought him these," continued the wife proudly. She displayed some $30 worth of East Indian laces in the form of centerpieces and doilies for the luncheon table.

"I bought these of the missionaries from India; they will be perfectly sweet when I give an afternoon tea."

"But that isn't all I got for John," she added quickly as she intercepted another exchange of glances between her lord and master and the visitor.

"I got him this!"

Here she produced from a bureau drawer a square of parchment. It was imposing in size and emblazoned with seals.

"Oh, back stock!" cried the visitor. "Now, that is something like!"

"Not," returned the wife scornfully, "better than that. It is a life membership, price $10, in the Woman's Foreign Missionary society."

And then she wondered why her guest had hysterics and her husband fled the room.—Reheboth Sunday Herald.

Flirt and Coquette.

Does man like the coquette? Many prefer the flirt, though to many the terms are synonymous. "The coquette" uses man as she does her dress. She likes to be seen with a new one every day; she kills for the sake of killing; she satisfies her vanity by playing on man's nerves.

"The flirt" is not serious, and she does not wish you to take her seriously; she wants fun, and if you accept her for what she is worth you may pass a very pleasant time.

"The coquette" tries to lead you as fast as she wishes you to go.

"The flirt" does not lead you further than you wish to go.

"Flirt" often make good wives. "Coquette" never.

What Becomes of the Gold?

What has become of all the gold produced in the past thirteen years? The production is estimated at 2,335 million dollars, and the London Statist shows that $1,632,000,000 of this had gone into the banks and treasuries; in other words, the reserve pockets of the world. Of the remaining 1,933 million dollars it would be fair to estimate that 1,105 million dollars was consumed in the arts and sciences. This leaves 833 million dollars unaccounted for. About $5 million dollars of gold a year are therefore mysteriously disappearing. Does the gold go into hidden hoards, or is the use of it in the industries larger than is generally supposed?

An Anecdote of a Wet Year.

A Belfast (Maine) man recalls that this year is the fortieth anniversary of the "wet summer" when Belfast postponed part of its big Fourth of July celebration to August 7. Many places in the state had planned for demonstrations on the Fourth, but rain interfered, and some towns had it on the installation plan, Belfast among the number. The season was so wet that on low lands on many farms the hay was cut and stacked on the driest place that could be found and hauled off after the ground froze in the winter.

Dangers of Hugging.

"There is too much affectionate hugging of children by fond parents," said Dr. George J. Helmer, of New York City, in a talk at the opening session of the seventh annual convention of the Pennsylvania Osteopathic association.

"Dangerous diseases result from the pressure of the ribs caused by these embraces," he continued, "and a mother without knowing, often raises her child for life."

I will mail you free, to prove the value of my Dr. Hensley's Restorative, a copy of my book on either Dyspepsia, the Heart or the Kidneys. Trouble of the stomach, heart or kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—cause stomach weakness, always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weak these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Hensley's Restorative has made its mark. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for treating biliousness, bad breath or constipation, use Dr. Hensley's Restorative. Write me today for sample and full book. Dr. Hensley, Hensley, Wis. The Restorative is sold by H. A. Farnham.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country, and it is the cause of many sudden deaths. It is a disease of the blood, and it is called "Blood Poison." It is a disease that is caused by the use of impure food, and it is a disease that is caused by the use of impure water. It is a disease that is caused by the use of impure air, and it is a disease that is caused by the use of impure clothing. It is a disease that is caused by the use of impure medicine, and it is a disease that is caused by the use of impure surgery. It is a disease that is caused by the use of impure everything, and it is a disease that is caused by the use of impure nothing.

The effect of Scott's Emulsion on thin, pale children is magical. It makes them plump, rosy, active, happy. It contains Cod Liver Oil, Hypophosphites and Glycerine, to make fat, blood and bone, and so put together that it is easily digested by little folk.
